First, grasp the lower eyelid near the margin with the thumb and index finger and pull outward to create a pouch in the lower cul-de-sac.

Then, without touching the dropper tip to any ocular structures, position it above the eye by direct visualization. Just before releasing a drop, look upward.

Allow the drop to settle by gravity into the lower cul-de-sac before releasing the eyelid.

With the drop in place, close the eyelids and apply pressure to the nasolacrimal duct or forced eyelid closure for at least 2 minutes to minimize drainage and systemic absorption.
